How lawyers are ranked

Every year we carry out thousands of in-depth interviews with clients in order to assess the reputations and expertise of business lawyers across the USA. The qualities we look for (and which determine rankings) include technical legal ability, professional conduct, client service, commercial awareness/astuteness, diligence, commitment, and other qualities most valued by the client.

Kirkland & Ellis LLP

The Firm: Consistently positive feedback reinforces Kirkland's position at the top of the antitrust table. "This is one of the very best firms I've worked with, and the first firm I'd call on where tough and complex antitrust issues are involved," enthused one client, echoing market opinion of this Chicago behemoth. Commentators agree that Kirkland's antitrust capabilities took root in the firm's celebrated litigation practice, and the antitrust team is still best known for its "phenomenal strength in litigation." Kirkland recently acted for Aon in a case that amply demonstrated this skill; a consolidated federal putative antitrust and RICO class action, brought by insurance policyholders who alleged an industry-wide conspiracy to stifle competition and allocate insurance policies based on broker commissions. Another distinctive feature of the firm is the deep bench of lawyers: sources describe a "large team where each and every lawyer is bright, thorough, efficient and collaborative." This strength of manpower ensures that clients are "keen to retain the firm on matters that require a high level of attention."

The Lawyers: Jim Mutchnik (see p.1057) uses his "great intelligence, litigation skills and breadth of experience" to achieve "excellent results." Clients appreciate his ability to "understand the prosecuting side, and be candid in his assessment and forthright in how he discusses things. These are serious matters, and he treats them as such." He is currently defending Weyerhaeuser in a multibillion-dollar class action antitrust matter. Andy Langan (see p.1049) is also highly regarded; his recent work has included representing BP on various state and FTC inquiries into gasoline pricing. Robbie Robertson (see p.1061) "has excellent academic knowledge." Sources agree that his ability to use this knowledge practically, makes him "a well-rounded and impressive antitrust lawyer." Daniel Laytin (see p.1049) is described as "assertive, commercial, bright and efficient".

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm acted for Cellnet Group in connection with its $705 million sale to automated meter-reading industry competitor Bayard Group. The team is also defending GM in a consolidated class action antitrust conspiracy lawsuit alleging that certain vehicle manufacturers conspired to prevent the sale of less expensive new Canadian vehicles to American consumers.

Mayer Brown LLP

See firm details p.1088

The Firm: While observers draw attention to the "size, commerciality and pragmatism" of this "truly excellent practice," most hold that it is the firm's geographic scope that really marks it out – its network of offices spanning North America and Europe enables the firm to serve a wide range of domestic and international clients. Involvement in some of the biggest and most important antitrust work demonstrates the firm's prominent position on the Illinois legal landscape; for example, this year the team defended BASF against allegations that manufacturers conspired to fix the price and allocate customers and nationwide markets for certain urethanes. Clients appreciate this team of "bright and knowledgeable lawyers" that is supported by "ample resources."

The Lawyers: Senior lawyer Lee Abrams is universally regarded as "excellent" in antitrust matters. Sources agree that the firm benefits greatly from his experience and expertise. Andrew Marovitz is "a formidable opponent." Described as "bright and solid," he is "strong in terms of his substantive knowledge, and has a lot of credibility with judges." Mark McLaughlin is "a roll-up-your-sleeves, get-to-the-point, practical adviser," declare satisfied clients. Robert Finke also receives positive feedback.

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm successfully defended liner supplier AlSCO in a class action alleging conspiracy to impose fictitious charges for its services. The firm also defended DSM Elastomers Europe and DSM Copolymer against allegations that manufacturers conspired to fix the price and allocate customers and nationwide markets for EPDM, a synthetic rubber product.

Sidley Austin LLP

See firm details p.1096

The Firm: Observers concur that this "solid antitrust practice" can be relied upon to "do a fine job." The firm is experienced in a range of matters, demonstrating particular capability in the healthcare and pharmaceutical industry. Several sources also extolled the group's abilities in class actions, noting that "Sidley has shown itself to be excellent at the precedent-setting megacases – big class actions are a specialty." This is illustrated by the firm's work on behalf of Johnson & Johnson, acting on several cases challenging the company's 'bundled' discounts on sutures and endomechanical products. The firm has made a "very positive impression" upon market observers, who describe the lawyers as "excellent in advocacy and drafting, and enjoyable to work with." The firm's ability to "think about issues analytically" impresses clients, and its deep understanding of the healthcare and pharmaceutical industries acts as a further drawing card.

The Lawyers: Jack Bierig (see p.1032) is noted for his experience in healthcare antitrust work. Sources draw attention to his "many fine qualities," describing him as a lawyer who is "capable, bright and attuned to clients' needs." Chuck Douglas (see p.1038) is a "superb litigator" with a particular focus on antitrust. He has recently acted for Microsoft on antitrust matters. Tom Ryan (see p.1063) is a "fine lawyer" who sources say adds considerable strength to the practice. "Fantastic litigator" John Treece (see p.1069) receives accolades for his excellent understanding of the pharmaceutical industry. Commentators marvel at his "understanding of the rules, and his ability to put the issues into a legal framework in a pragmatic way."

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm advised MAP Multiple Listing Service (MAP) in an investigation by the Antitrust Division of the Illinois Attorney General's Office. The investigation focused on MAP's rules regarding the availability of participants' listings to populate the Internet sites of other MAP participants. The firm also acted for the National Association of Realtors (NAR) in a case where the DOJ challenged NAR's policies regarding the display of real estate listings on the Internet. Further work includes representing Toda Kogyo in a federal case alleging price-fixing in the magnetic iron oxide industry.

Band 2*Baker & McKenzie LLP

See firm details p.1074

The Firm: This "robust and committed" antitrust group is commended for its experience in the healthcare industry, with most market sources agreeing that the firm's greatest strength lies in counseling rather than litigation. The addition of Roxane Busey and Tom Campbell in 2005 strengthened the practice, and the firm has been involved in some important merger work over the past year, recently advising Bayard on the acquisition of two competitors in automated metering for electrical utilities. Though compact, this team's solid and far-reaching network of international connections adds to its credentials – clients frequently cite this global reach as one of the firm's key attributes.

The Lawyers: Known for her work in the healthcare industry, Roxane Busey (see p.1034) receives praise from numerous sources. One peer noted: "If I needed an antitrust counselor, I'd be very, very confident with Busey. She is a brilliant lawyer, bright and experienced." Clients are satisfied with the service they receive from Tom Campbell (see p.1034), describing him as "very knowledgeable and responsive."

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm furnished advice to Hospira on the FTC investigation of Hospira's acquisition of Mayne Pharma and defended the National Resident Matching Program in an antitrust class action.

delighted with the service they receive. One explained: "The team here is terrific in terms of intellectual expertise, and is incredibly skilled in trial work – this is a great combination, and we were very pleased with the results achieved for us." Commentators draw particular attention to the firm's "very strong healthcare antitrust practice," but are quick to add that the firm has expanded its remit in recent years, and as a result "diversity is now another feature of the firm." The group has capabilities in a wide range of areas. Recently the firm represented Koch Industries and its subsidiaries in defending an ongoing nationwide class action alleging antitrust violations in the sale of sulfuric acid.

The Lawyers: Joel Chefitz (see p.1035) "is very knowledgeable and insightful, which is a great combination." He is lauded for his ability to "come up with creative, commercially sound solutions in a timely fashion, while keeping the client's bottom line in mind." David Marx (see p.1052) specializes in healthcare work. Clients agree that "he is practical and always finds a way to make things work, which is what you want in an antitrust lawyer."

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm acted for Stora Enso in an investigation into claims that Stora Enso conspired with competitors to fix the prices of coated magazine paper. The team also provides Zebra Technologies with ongoing antitrust and strategic advice concerning potential mergers, product development and relationships with customers.

Sonnenschein Nath & Rosenthal LLP

See firm details p.1097

The Firm: This "robust and solid" group is noted for its capabilities in distribution and franchising work. "Vastly experienced and truly committed to the success of its clients," the firm is heralded for its ability to produce "creative and effective solutions in a timely and cost-effective way." Although some express doubt about the depth of the bench, there is no doubt that the firm counts some "real antitrust experts" among its ranks. "These remarkably experienced lawyers have the ability to look at issues from numerous angles."

The Lawyers: An expert in antitrust counseling, Robert Joseph (see p.1046) is "very good technically" and "certainly has the respect of his peers." Over the past year he has been active in antitrust class actions involving nurses' wages and railroad fuel surcharges. "Tremendous advocate and counselor" Alan Silberman (see p.1066) is "widely acknowledged to be an expert." Clients praise his "comprehensive knowledge of antitrust law, and his ability to apply this in a practical way."

Clients/Work Highlights: The firm advised the Nevada Commissioner of Insurance on antitrust issues related to United Healthcare's proposed acquisition of Sierra Health. The firm also advised Pella Corporation on price discrimination issues and marketing arrangements with major customers.

McDermott Will & Emery LLP

See firm details p.1090

The Firm: Although this national giant now has offices reaching as far afield as Shanghai, the firm remains justifiably proud of its Chicago roots. Authorities in the market assert that the team of "excellent lawyers" here drives the Chicago antitrust practice from strength to strength, and clients are
